FLOORING INSTALLATION

CODE OF CONDUCT

- All of our installers have been trained and certified on our Senior Living Code of Conduct. This is a proprietary certification that communicates safety, access control, and on-site communication and behaviors for the senior living environment.
- Our Code of Conduct complies with all Owner/Operator Standards of Conduct and Regulatory requirements as defined by law. These standards include business ethics, business standard practices, engagement with the communities, and health and safety practices.
- We properly train our installation providers to identify and eliminate potential on-site concerns such as poor air quality, trip hazards, or door security issues.

UNIFORM LABOR PRACTICES

- As part of our partnering process, our labor experts carefully review your project details and safety requirements to create a customized document known as a Uniform Labor Practice (ULP).
- The ULP's allow us to standardize best practices, which include:
 - Scope of work requirements
 - Specific safety needs
 - Community management expectations
 - Material and equipment needs
 - On-site communication requirements
 - Scheduling and phasing plans
- By communicating your community's specialized needs and adhering to these documents, we can ensure our crews perform to your standards at each location. Resulting in consistent performance and successful installation with every job.
